

The science of storytelling. The storytelling of science.

We are Galliard, a specialist healthcare communications agency made up of hugely talented and diverse individuals. We combine a passion for science and a love of storytelling with an intelligent dose of creativity to deliver highly effective solutions for our clients.

At Galliard, storytelling is at the heart of our approach to communications, because a good story will be told again and again, passed from person to person and will resonate online, in print, or on air.

Working exclusively in the health sector, we seek out the stories that lie hidden deep within complex science, clinical data and market research reports, crafting a programme that is unique for the brand, objectives and budget. We tell stories that attract attention. Generate impact. Stimulate action. Or sometimes, just make you think differently.

Our expertise:

- Brand communications
- Internal communications
- Digital and social media
- Congress support
- Media relations
- Issues management
- Disease awareness campaigns
- Strategic consultancy

We put people first. We believe the only way to deliver excellence for our clients is by creating a supportive, nurturing and stimulating environment where our people are able to think, create, question and grow. Above all else, we're a family – a close-knit and supportive group of people who are there for each other every day of the week. We want everyone at Galliard to feel inspired, supported and valued.

We're proud to offer our employees:

- A competitive pay and benefits package
- Dynamic working
- Ongoing support to achieve development goals
- A dedicated team who organise regular socials, outings and events
- A fantastic working environment in the heart of central London

Want to know more?

Reach out to us at hello@galliardhealth.com

Part of UDG Healthcare plc